Amazon's Alexa-enabled family of devices continues to grow. From the new spherical Echo to the swaddling Echo Show 10, you can get Alexa in your home in different ways. These devices can answer your questions, help you order essentials, set timers, play all kinds of audio content, and even function as a control center for your growing smart home. These are our favorite Echo and Alexa compatible speakers for every home and budget. If you're trying to decide which smart devices might be best for you, be sure to check out WIRED picks in our roundup: Best smart speakers, best Bluetooth speakers, and best Google Speakers. Updated October 2020: We've updated prices and incorporated new Echo speakers. If you buy something using links in our stories, we can earn commissions. It helps to support our journalism. Learn more. Please also consider a subscription to the fourth generation OF THE WIRED Amazon Echo noticeably changing the shape of the cylindrical speaker into a fully round speaker ball. We haven't tested it yet, but expect the same bold bass and filling the sound stage room as the previous model. Amazon has really dialed in its digital signal processing and sound quality over the previous three Echos, and the more rounded edges should help fidelity. The new Echo comes with an Amazon A1 Neural Edge processor that helps it recognize speech even better than its predecessors. He works in every room in the house. Use it in the kitchen for recipes and timers, bedroom for news and weather, or put it in the bathroom for shower singalongs. It's compact, sounds decent, and well suited to everything you want a smart speaker to do. If music quality is your top priority, scroll down to Echo Studio and Sonos One, which are our favorite Alexa speakers for listening to music. The Amazon Echo Dot with the watch (4th Gen) (Parker) has been the third generation Echo Dot with a watch on my nightstand for almost a year, and it's the greatest alarm clock ever. You can easily check the time in the middle of the night, thanks to the forward-facing clock, and it wakes me up with my favorite seasonal playlists. I have this to tell me the weather is how I dress, too. In addition, it is also great in the kitchen, where the display can show the status of the timer. Amazon recently updated the Echo Dot, and there are two fourth-generation models - one with a watch and one without it. It looks very similar and round like the new Echo standard. We haven't had a chance to spend some time with it yet, but if anything the new round shape will make it easier to see the clock on the nightstand and will project to sound even further. Its audio fidelity won't be surprising though, so you'll want more speaker if you want to enjoy anything other than background music while you dress or cook. Our best Amazon Echo price roundup is here to deal with you with one of the Voice control smart money speakers can buy. These big little devices were responsible for bringing smart home functionality to millions of homes and it's easy to see why they are so popular. The good news is two new Echo Dots have just joined us this month for 2020 and we've already incorporated them along with the old iterations just below, complete with a little review for you to check out. Of course, all the old favorites are here too this week and we'll be providing the best prices for them too, as well as some helpful tips on scoring the very best Echo Dot Deals all year round. There's an Echo speaker for every occasion now, thanks to Amazon's ever-growing lineup of releases adding new additions every few years. We're also seeing some great updates to older models that bring a range of speaker updates as well as new software. As always though, diminutive Amazon Echo Dot deals start listing on the cheaper end today, offering a great starting point for any smart home. If you're just looking for pure Alexa functionality we also have the best Price Echo Flex going on as well. We also have prices for larger versions too including Amazon Echo, Echo Studio and more. If you want a visual element too, then we have you covered all three sizes of the Amazon Echo Show or a bedside table friendly Echo Spot, all of which include a screen. Although Amazon has developed and built these smart devices, they are actually on sale in a large number of stores, which means they are never far from discounts. We'll also list the standard price of each of these Amazon Alexa-powered speakers so you can get a better idea of how good the latest discounts are in comparison charts. Read about the upcoming Black Friday 2020 and Cyber Monday deals events (Image credit: Amazon) This year's new Amazon Echo is here, the fourth generation in a long line of excellent smart speakers from the tech giant. No, your eyes don't fool you, it's really much, much more spherical than last year's iteration, but fortunately all that extra space around the waist has been put to good use with some updated interior. The new speaker array looks to provide an all-around much higher fidelity experience for music lovers, while the inclusion of the new Amazon Sidewalk and Sigby support should help with smart home device compatibility across the board. You'll also get a new 'A1 Neural Edge' processor on board this year, which Amazon claims helps speed up voice command recognition in half - not bad considering this new iteration of retail for the same price as last year's release. (Image credit: Amazon) Equally spherical, but much smaller is the cute new Echo Dot - the fourth generation in a long line of excellent budget smart speakers from Amazon. Running for just $49.99/49.99/AUS$79, it remains one of the cheapest ways hands on the voice assistant this year, but almost sadly aside from its new eye-catching spherical design, improvements are mostly iterative. However, the new inclusion of Alexa Voice Profiles for kid is little feature if you have children in the house. This new children's technology can recognize when a young person gives voice commands and tailors this reception accordingly. So if a child asks Alexa a question, they will get an appropriate answer, an animal alarm, and even help with their homework if they need it. (Image credit: Amazon) The key in the title. One of the latest Echo devices to hit the market, the Echo Flex is a supremely flexible Alexa speaker. We use the term speaker quite freely as you won't choose this cheap Echo device for its sound quality (it's not great). What the plug can offer is a very handy plug-in to stick to Alexa functionality in any free outlet. Talk to your virtual assistant and control your smart home like any other Alexa-enabled device, but much less than you usually shell out for a full speaker. With extra accessories on their way, this cheap Echo device is perfect if you're looking to add your smart assistant to every room in the house, but don't want to cough up the entire speaker every time. (Image credit: Amazon) Speaker size: 1.6 inches Dimensions: 4.3 x 9.9 x 9.9 cm Weight: 300g Line of: 3.5mm Audio or Bluetooth Starting Price: $59.99/59.99/AUS$99 Clock/timer display super handy Great value for Alexa speaker More expensive No other significant improvements to the Amazon Echo Dot with a watch starting price: $59.99/59.99/AUS$99. The 2019 Amazon Echo Dot model with a watch is only a modest update. It's technically still a 3rd generation Echo Dot, but now comes with a neat display on the side that can display the time. Amazon says that one of the most popular questions Alexa gets on time, so this will save you a job. Many of us use smart speakers as timers around the kitchen too so we're happy to see the display used to show the countdown timer. It will also display the temperature when asked about the weather. Other types of queries will start using this additional functionality in the near future. The only other improvement over the previous model is the click to postpone option when using Dot as an alarm. If these new features don't do much for you, then you can save money by choosing the regular Echo Dot deals below instead. Amazon Echo Dot launch price (3rd generation): $49.99 / 49.99 / AUS$79. Old, standard third iteration of Echo Dot comes in three colors - charcoal, the heather grey and sandstone (it's going to be black, gray or white for the rest of us). Dynamics. You can also connect it wirelessly to external speakers via Bluetooth. (Image credit: Amazon) Speaker size: 3-inch wufer and 0.8-inch tweeter Dimensions: 14.8 x 9.9 x 9.9 cm Weight: 780g Line out: 3.5mm Audio or Bluetooth Starting Price: $99.99/89.99/AU $149 Improved Sound Th of No Price Rise Gret for Music No Hours Display, like the new Echo Dot Amazon Echo (3rd Generation 2019) starting price: $99.99/89.99 euros/AUS$149. The standard-sized Amazon Echo speaker is getting better and better each iteration, and this new third generation model marks the biggest improvement yet, especially for music lovers. The audio architecture is now in line with what's found in the more expensive Amazon Echo Plus thanks to neodymium drivers, a larger 3-inch woofer and more tweeter too. It's all so a little chunkier than the 2nd generation model while maintaining the same height. The overall aesthetic remains thanks to the fabric design, however, although Amazon has launched a new color for the occasion in Twilight Blue (see image above). If you already have a point and want to round up the sound with a little extra oomph then this will be a great purchase. Or, if you haven't yet bought any Alexa speaker, this is a great place to start if music playback will be one of the main reasons you buy one. The launch price of the Amazon Echo (2nd generation): $99.99 / 89.99 / AUS$119. With the new version hitting the shelves, we'd only go for this version of the Amazon Echo if there's a significant discount. The 2nd generation Amazon Echo was the solid middle of the Alexa family, with a more powerful speaker than the Echo Dot. This second-generation version is a little shorter, but the home's updated speaker is powered by some neat Dolby handling. At the start, it was just the right option in the Echo lineup. It's not as budget-like as the Amazon Echo Dot, and isn't as premium as the Amazon Echo Plus. In 2017, you would buy this if you wanted to use smart speaker primarily for quality music, but would like to keep prices down. Today, the newest third generation Echo is doing much better at that same price. If you see it decline, check the status of the third generation price tag before you make a purchase. (Image credit: Amazon) Amazon Launch Price Amazon Echo Show 8: $129.99/119.99/AUS$129. Shortly after the release of Show 5, Amazon came along with Amazon's Echo Show 8 and larger screen. So while you may prefer a smaller Echo Show 5 for the nightstand, the new show 8 works better in larger spaces. If you're looking for some high-profile recipe guides in the form of kitchen video tutorials, then this is perfect. The second-generation Echo Show offers a larger screen, but this 10-inch display has a significant price jump. This 8-inch screen is perfect for wider use than you need from the nightstand without offering a hefty price tag to match. You also get the superb display and sound quality of the Echo Show (2nd Gen) with all the privacy benefits and apps that came with Show 5. It's a union, bits of the last two models that comes out with a price tag sitting closer to a cheaper end than the premium 2nd generation. (Image credit: Amazon) Amazon Launch Price Of Amazon Echo Show 5: $89.99/79.99/AUS$129. This is the cheapest Amazon Echo Show you'll learn in the wild right now. It comes with a smaller five-inch screen than the other Echo Show deals on this list, but if you're after something for a nightstand display, or you just don't need another intrusive screen in your living room, it'll sit perfectly. Compared to your big siblings, or Google rival suggestions, you may find the screen a little small depending on where you're going to see it after requesting something through the voice team. In addition, you'll miss out on the improved display and sound quality of the recent Show 8 as well. The huge selection of how-to-video is super handy though if you can plug it in nearby, especially in the kitchen. Check out our full review of Amazon Echo Show 5 if you want to know more about this budget-friendly smart speaker. Amazon Echo Show (2nd gen) starting price: $229.99 / 219.99 / AUS$349. Amazon has released a 2018 update for the Amazon Echo Show, Alexa's touchscreen smart speaker. As things stand, it's a little more expensive than the previous generation version and much more expensive than the competitor Google Home Hub prices. With the original model completely discontinued, however, this is the only way you get your hands on that classic mega 10-inch display. The oldest Amazon Echo Show on this list has the largest screen, with louder speakers and superb display quality over Show 5, but offers a comparable experience of Show 8. This makes it much better suited for video content that will be enjoyed through your Amazon Prime membership or for free on other channels. You can of course still use it as an intelligent center for other devices such as smart thermostats or lamps. This is more important than ever, and now that many smart devices don't require their own nodes to work - just slotting right into the Alexa ecosystem. Amazon Echo Plus (2nd generation launch price: $149.99 / 139.99 / $229). Amazon has updated the Echo Plus smart speaker at the end of 2018. It then updated the Echo in 2019. Now they look very similar. The truth is that the second generation of the Echo Plus carries the same dynamic configuration as the new third generation Amazon Echo, which also shoots it for much less money. However, when the second generation Of Echo Plus was released in 2018, it marked a step up in Alexa's sound quality credentials. So why would you pay more for the same speaker released a year earlier? If you're using Sigby's smart home devices, you don't want to be too hasty in dismissing the old model. The last Echo of the third generation dropped support for Sigby, while you'll still find it on the second generation Echo Plus here. This is the main advantage of the Amazon Echo Plus, and, The only reason you have to pick it up is the fact that there is a Sigby smart home hub built in. (Image (Image Amazon)) If you've been watching the Echo Sub for a while wishing you could just add a smart speaker to the fantastic sound for the full package, you'll want to check out the 2019 Echo Studio. The massive Echo Smart Speaker works as a full high-quality audio solution that not only offers impressive sound quality for its price tag, but can also easily create a home theater with a Fire stick. Amazon smashed their Echo Studio as low as possible in price - great times for all bargain hunters out there. Don't be fooled by that relatively low price either, it's a powerful speaker. While 3D audio can be a hit and miss, we found that Echo Studio offered fantastic value for money with powerful sound and lots of features. Size Speaker: 6-inch wufer, Amplifier 100 W Dimensions: 20.2 x 21cm Weight: 4.2kg Line in: Bluetooth Starting Price: $129.99/119.99/AUS$199 Subwoofer add-on 100W Deep Bass Sound On Smart Speaker itself Amazon Echo Sub starting price: $129.99 / 119.99 / AUS$199. If you're going to WA on Amazon's Alexa audio setup at home, then you'll want to take a look at the latest Amazon Echo Sub prices. The Echo Sub isn't a smart speaker though, it's a subwoofer to connect to other Echo speakers, so you need to pick up one of those (you're already on the right page for them!), if you don't already have one. Or, check out some of the strata available as Amazon started selling the Echo Sub with a pair of regular echo speakers in some regions to give you a full stereo sound setup at home. If you prefer to just have one beast smart speaker with a huge sound, then you can check out the latest Amazon Echo Studio, although it's a little more expensive. Starting price of Amazon Echo Spot: $129 / 119.99 euros / 179 euros. The Amazon Echo Spot has been discontinued, meaning it's unlikely you'll find a particularly impressive price drop anytime soon - at least not the one that will make it feel more valuable than Show 5. A small, circular screen was designed to show you little bits of information rather than watching episodes of The Grand Tour or Mr. Robot. The 2017 model hasn't seen much action in the last three years, so you'll be better off picking up something a little newer. New. Amazon Echo price in Bangladesh. Amazon Echo price in Pakistan.
